

Playing at school with Greenfylde Dog

Greenfylde Dog was enjoying the sunshine playing football in his garden. He liked playing games and began to think about if he would still be able to play when he went to school.

Greenfylde Dog had two friends from Pre-School called Bear and Monkey. They were a little bit older than Greenfylde Dog and had started school last year.

They told him there was a big playground where you could play with friends and even a 'buddy bench' where you could go and people would come and let you join in their games.

Bear and Monkey enjoyed playing on the activity trails. They went on at playtime and before and after school, so long as they had an adult with them.

Monkey loved to balance and swing across the log swings.

Sliding down the slide was Bear's favourite activity.

Monkey and Bear had told them that when you start school you have two classrooms, one inside and one outside. In Pippin class, Monkey liked to play in the Mud Kitchen and Greenfylde Dog knew how much he liked to get messy.

Bear had a big imagination. He liked to pretend he was driving a shiny fire engine or that he was a super hero off to save the world. He always wanted to play with the wheels in Dove's outdoor classroom.

Greenfylde Dog thought it all sounded very exciting but knew that sometimes he liked some quiet time. Maybe, when he went to school, he could find the reading den that he knew Monkey and Bear went into when they wanted some quiet time at playtimes.

It is always good for our bodies to be active as this helps to keep us healthy. Have a go at making up a dance to your favourite music.
