

Forest School with Greenfylde Dog

Greenfylde Dog enjoyed being outside and loved to go in his garden or have a walk to the park or rec. He liked seeing all the plants around him and the creatures who lived in the plants and tress.

This week he had found a dandelion clock and had enjoyed blowing on this and watching the seeds sail away on the wind.

His big sister also liked being outside but Greenfylde Dog did not like it when she made daisy chains and put them on his head!

Greenfyldes Dog's friends had told him all about something they did at school called Forest School. Bear and Monkey loved all of the outside activities they did with Vernon, the Forest School leader.

They even tried to explain to Greenfylde Dog what the outdoor classrooms looked like as during this time when they had to stay inside, their families were helping them chat via the computer so they could still see each other.

Monkey was giggling about the time a frog had hopped from the pond and scared Bear. They liked having a pond, especially with the frog spawn in Spring, but knew they couldn't go through the gate to the pond without an adult as it could be dangerous and they must stay behind the fence.

Greenfylde Dog couldn't wait to try out all the fun things like building a shelter or making a mud monster. Monkey had made his monster insect with mud, pine cones and sticks.

Bear liked to look and see who was living in the Bug Hotel but he became very excited when his class had walks up Herne Hill. He looked forward to putting on his wellington boots so he could splash in any puddles and make patterns in the mud.

The school even had a gardening classroom. Greenfylde Dog thought this sounded good as he liked to use his paws to garden whilst Monkey just hoped he would get to eat whatever his class grew. Mmmm strawberries!

Can you be a bug detective and track these creatures for your very own Forest School?

Try to find bugs like those below in your garden, when you go for a walk or you even may see some as you look out of your window.
